Cold Wave Results In Public Gas Emergency

With the coldest weather of the winter season continuing throughout the central sections of the country today, the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which serves all of central Ohio, including Marion, today declared a public gas emergency "affecting all customers," according to an Associated Press dispatch.

All commercial customers in Marion were called this morning. Charles E. Sechrist, manager of the local office said, and were asked to conserve on the use of gas as much as possible. Supplies in various places were curtailed. Mr. Sechrist said the situation is critical, but he had no idea how long the emergency would be in effect.

Company spokesmen, according to The Associated Press dispatch, declared to home consumers to voluntarily curtail use of gas by shutting off unused rooms, reducing temperatures to a minimum, restricting use of cooking gas and using hot water as sparingly as possible. Deliveries of gas to industrial and commercial users were cut to a minimum earlier in the week. However, normal service was maintained to bread-baking establishments.

Break Set for Sunday

Still shivering under sub-freezing temperatures, Ohioans today were promised a break in the bitter cold late tomorrow, according to The Associated Press.

While Marion thermometers continued to show far below freezing temperatures, fair weather with rising temperatures was predicted.

The low in Marion last night was 10 above zero, and at 8 a. m. today, the mercury had only risen to 12. A weather forecast of "clearing and colder tonight with temperature near zero, Sunday fair weather with rising temperature in afternoon and evening" was issued today by the Columbus weather bureau. Between 8 a. m. yesterday and the same hour today, the high temperature was 20. A snowfall of two-tenths of an inch was registered during the night. A year ago the high was 38 and the low 3.

Wide Range in Ohio

Temperatures in Ohio this morning ranged from one below zero to 27 above, the state highway department reported. Snow was reported in most sections, from one to five inches deep. The department said highways in the northwest section were normal, but roads in the remainder of the state were snow-covered and slippery.

Temperatures dipped to a low of 43 below in Wisconsin at Ladysmith—as snow, freezing rain and sleet hit sections of the south and southwest.

The ice belt of sub-zero temperatures extended from the Dakotas to northern Missouri and northern Illinois ano minimums in many communities were the lowest in the last few years.

Cold Extends to South

Freezing rain and sleet brought discomfort to Louisiana, eastern Texas and southern Mississippi while heavy falls of snow were reported in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee. A snow belt about 200 miles wide extended from Pennsylvania and western New York state southwestward to Louisiana.

Early reports listed only seven deaths attributed to the weather. Three Kentucky men were killed near Bowling Green when their auto skidded on an icy highway into the path of a Louisville and Nashville railroad train. One death from freezing was reported in Tennessee and another in South Carolina. Two deaths resulted from the frigid temperatures which gripped Wisconsin.

DIMES CAMPAIGN RESPONSE IS GOOD

Firemen Report Money Packets Are Coming In.

If city firemen look unusually happy these days, there's a reason—it's the generous response of the citizens of Marion city and county to the 1948 March of Dimes campaign. Since the opening of the campaign last Thursday the packets mailed earlier in the week have been returned with contributions amounting to $336.80 as of this morning's count. Packets returned today held $232.

Contributions are coming in fine, the firemen at Central station, headquarters for the return of the packets either by mail or personal delivery, said today. Persons, not receiving packets or who wish to "up" their contribution, may do so by dropping coins or bills in the transparent containers which have been placed in business places in the city and outlying villages.

Virgil F. Dye is chairman of the 1948 campaign and the firemen, for the second year, have taken over the checking and banking of contributions received in the packets. Half of the funds contributed remain in Marion county and the remaining half is sent to the national fund headquarters to aid in carrying on the nationwide campaign against infantile paralysis and for research work looking to the halting and stamping out of the disease.

DOCTORS WARN GANDHI

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, Jan. 17—Mohandas K. Gandhi received a doctors' warning today to give up his fast, while thousands of his followers milled about Birla house in a showing of their devotion to him. The 78-year-old Hindu leader's doctors said "in our opinion it is most undesirable" to let the five-day fast continue. Gandi gave no indication he would heed this advice.

GALION POWER MIXUP TAKEN UP AT MEETING

Mayor Acts After Cancellation of Utility Co. Bids Is Revealed.

Special to The Star

GALION, Jan. 17 — A special joint meeting of city council, Galion manufacturers and a citizens' committee named to study the critical electric power problem, called by Mayor H. H. Hartmann, was held Friday night to consider applications for the positions of city service director and superintendent of the municipal light and power plant.

The meeting came on the heels of a threatened power curtailment Friday and the revelation that proposals from two outside power utilities concerns to serve Galion had been rejected by the previous administration.

Appointment of a succesor to Joseph Blest, superintendent of the light plant for 19 years who died last fall, and appointment of a service director have yet to be made by the 1948 city administration.

Walter Williams, light plant foreman, is serving as acting superintendent under appointment by former Mayor William Amann. Mayor Hartmann has not made his recommendation to council on appointment of a service director. K. A. Poister, former Crawford county engineer who served as service director under Mayor Amann still continues in that capacity.

Reports Bad Situation

Mayor Hartmann prefaced his remarks on the power muddle with the statement that never in the history of Galion has the city been in such bad financial and physical condition. During the meeting one manufacturer advocated a general housecleaning in city administration. He said "Don't stop with the power problem."

Mayor Hartmann expressed the opinion Galion should have a city manager form of government. He said it would be the "best thing for the city" and added such a system would stop the municipally owned electric utility being used as a political football. He declared he expected city council to take the initiative in establishing such a form of government.

Names of applicants for the two positions were not revealed at the meeting pending further consideration of applications.

It was learned Friday that both bids for purchase of supplemental power from an outside utility were rejected on the last day of the Amann administration Dec. 31, at 5 p. m., and that threatened boiler trouble yesterday looked for a short time like another curtailment in industrial production. The boiler trouble did not develop, and while the larger manufacturing concerns were asked if they could cut down on power, it was found not necessary, it was reported by Walter Williams who is temporarily in charge of operations at the Galion power plant. Williams said that everybody got by without having to lose any power, Friday, when trouble in one of the boilers at the plant developed and it was taken off the line for a short time.

TELLS NEED OF RENT CONTROLS

Harriman Says Living Costs Will Rise Sharply Unless Controls Continue.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Secretary of Commerce Harriman testified today that relaxation of rent controls would "directly raise the cost of living and add to the pressure of wage demands."

He further told a senate banking subcommittee "there is every indication that rents will rise sharply unless effective controls are extended."

Harriman said "releasing or easing of controls" on this important factor in the cost of living will be "inflationary" and "disruptive."

The committee, headed by Senator Cain (R-Wash) is hearing testimony on legislation to extend controls beyond Feb. 29, the date the present law is due to expire.

Owners Not Suffering

Harriman told the committee he does not think that property owners are "unduly suffering" under the present law, which, he said, is checking what in many cases could be called "unfair profiteering."

"I don't think that it is unfair for the government to step in and check profiteering in a necessity of life," he added.

Harriman reminded the senators that "the extension and strengthening of rent control was a cardinal point" in the 10-point anti-inflation program presented to congress by President Truman last November.

He testified as two more Democratic senators, Maybank (S.C.) and Fulbright (Ark.), joined Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) in predicting there is scarcely any chance congress will strengthen rent controls.

Harriman Told the committee

"Rent is one of the largest items in the consumers' budget. It is exceeded in importance only by food. There is every indication that rents will rise sharply unless effective controls are extended. It would be most unfortunate to increase the pressure on wage earners' incomes at a time when our every effort should be in the other direction."

Most Republicans and Democrats agree rent controls should be continued. The big questions are: for how long and in what form?

Mr. Truman, in his November 17 message to the special session of congress, called for strengthening the existing statute. He made no specific recommendations.

The law now in effect permitted—up to the start of this year—rent increases of up to 15 per cent in cases where tenants agreed to a boost in exchange for a lease running through 1948.

STRIKE TIES UP FUEL

By The Associated Press

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J., Jan. 17—Hundreds of homes in this area were without fuel oil and heat today as four tank cars containing 40,000 gallons of the oil remained tied up by refusal of railroad men to cross a picket line at the R. McAllister Coal Co.

NATIONWIDE RAIL STRIKE THREATENED

Brotherhoods Set Walkout for Feb. 6 Pending 30 Per Cent Pay Boost.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 17—Another nationwide railroad strike was threatened today by three operating Brotherhoods, who said they would walk out Feb. 6 unless given a 30 per cent pay increase and 44 changes in working rules.

D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, announced the strike deadline here last night after Chairman Frank P. Douglass of the national (railway) mediation board revealed in Chicago he would advise President Truman that mediation efforts have broken down and an emergency existed.

Under provisions of the railway labor act, the President now may appoint a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute and make recommendations. The board then has 30 days to hold hearings and report to the President. A 30-day "cooling-off" period is required before a walkout may start.

Robertson said his union and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Switchen's Union of North America would "go ahead with strike plans" set for 6 a. m. Feb. 6.

Affects 240 Roads

A strike by the three unions, who claim a membership of more than 238,000, would affect about 240 railroads and switching yards in the country, Robertson estimated.

It appeared such a walkout would halt rail movement as completely as in May, 1946, when the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Railroad Trainmen struck for 48 hours before capitulating to President Truman's terms as troops were being prepared to man the trains.

Douglass said the mediation board had been trying since Nov. 24 to settle the dispute between the three Brotherhoods and carriers.

The Engineers report a membership of about 90,000; the Firemen and Enginemen about 118,000 and the Switchmen about 30,000.

The Trainmen and 18 other railroad unions, representing about 1,200,000 workers — most of them non-operating employes —agreed last fall to terms with the railroads, accepting hourly pay boosts of 15½ cents.

The Brotherhoods involved in the present dispute, Robertson said, are "far behind most other unions on the wage question."

Pay Rates Vary

No average pay rates for the operating unions were available. The railroads contend engineers and firemen are in the highest wage brackets among railroad employes. Mediation officials said complicated working schedules

"BABY BANDIT" GANG INDICTED IN PEORIA

By International News Service

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 17 — Three members of the Mansfield, O., "Baby Bandit" gang were held today in the Peoria county (Ill.) jail in default of $5,000 bail on charges of armed robbery.

The trio was indicted yesterday by a grand jury for $200 holdup of the Koren Jobbing Co. of Peoria. No date was set for the trial.

Those indicted were Richard Grubaugh, 18; Robert W. Livingstone, 16, and Bruno Dresch, 22.

The gang members also face federal prosecution for violation of the national motor vehicle theft (Dyer) act.

A fourth member of the gang, 17-year-old Leroy Miller, was accidentally shot and killed while the gang was celebrating success of its crime spree in a Quincy, Ill., hotel.

Grubaugh and Livingstone were arrested in Quincy shortly after Miller was killed. Dresch was apprehended at Peoria with Ruth Wilcoxon, 16, also of Mansfield, who posed as Dresch's bride. The girl was released by authorities.

Police said the four youths admitted the Peoria holdup and also admitted robbery of a Ft. Wayne, Ind., gas station and stealing a car.

Authorities said the gang told them they had intended to travel to California and finance their trip by staging holdups along their route.

BOY, 7, HIT IN STREET BY SKIDDING AUTO

Fred Franklin, age 7, of 824 Davids street, was injured when struck yesterday at 4 p. m. by a car driven by Ray Jacobs, 22, of 257 Uncapher avenue.

Fred and his brother Richard, both sons of Alvin Franklin of 824 Davids street, started to cross Davids street from east to west in the middle of the block between Congress and Buckeye streets. Fred stepped off the curb and Richard followed a few feet behind. Richard saw the Jacobs car approaching from the south and seeing he would be unable to cross in front of it he returned to the curb. Fred did not see the car approaching, and continued walking until he was about the center of the street.

Jacobs, driving north at about 25 miles an hour, saw the two boys and attempted to apply his brakes, but even at this speed the street was too slippery for him to stop. Sensing this Jacobs attempted to drive between the two boys and struck Fred.

Fred Franklin suffered a cut on the head and was taken to City hospital by the Uncapher-Bastian ambulance. Today his condition was reported as fair.

SAYS CONGRESS WILL SUSTAIN TAX VETO

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Rep. Doughton (D-NC) predicted today congress would sustain a veto of the present Knutson bill to slash income taxes $5,600,000,000 a year.

Nevertheless, the North Carolinian told a reporter, he thinks President Truman is wrong in his stand there should be no overall reduction in federal revenues.

And if the senate "moderates" the GOP tax measure after it leaves the house it might muster the necessary two-thirds majority to override a presidential turndown, the veteran congressional tax expert said.

As matters now stand, Doughton declared, the bill introduced by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn) and the President's own plan for a "cost of living" income tax cut offset by a new levy on corporations present "a choice of two evils."

2 FIREMEN DIE FIGHTING BLAZE

Falling Wall Kills Veteran, Rookie, Injures 3 as Cleveland Winery Burns.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17—A veteran fireman of 38 years service and a rookie with the department about six months died last night in the second major fire on Cleveland's west side in two days.

Paul L. Green, 57, and Harry Spencer, 20, were buried under tons of debris when a wall of the Russo Wine Co. collapsed; and three other firemen were injured by falling bricks.

Fire Capt. Norbert J. Whalen, 51, suffered a punctured scalp, head and face cuts and a broken leg. Firemen Gilbert J. Ryan, 36, and Frank P. Jubach, 32, were cut on their heads.

The three injured firemen fought their way clear of the falling brick and mortar which fell on Green and Spencer. Six other firemen on the roof of the two-story brick and frame structure leaped 15 feet to safety on a nearby roof and climbed down ladders.

Estimates of damage in the fire ranged from $175,000 by Chief James E. Granger to $200,000 by Joseph Russo, one of the owners. Russo said 40,000 cases of wine were in the plant.

The wine and paper cartons and labels fed flames and spread alcoholic fumes throughout the smoke-filled area where nine engine companies, four hook-and-ladders and two hose companies battled the fire for five hours.

Water quickly coated the streets with ice, heightening difficulties for the firefighters in their successful effort to save two houses less than a yard from the winery.

First Assistant Chief James Nimmo said fire wardens would investigate today in an effort to determine the cause of the blaze which started on a balcony of the building. Eighteen employes inside at the time got out unharmed.

Wednesday night a $250,000 fire swept the Elliott Electric Co. less than a half mile from the scene of last night's fire.

Ruhr Workers Back On Job After Week's Unrest

By The Associated Press

DUESSELDORF, GERMANY, Jan. 17—Three Ruhr cities where 50,000 workers struck yesterday against food shortages were normal again today, with all strikers reported back on the job.

Trade union officials said promises of food from other areas of the United States and British zones have relieved tension in the three cities, Duisberg, Muehlheim and Dislaken. In the last week a total of 150,000 workers has been on strike at one time or another in the industrial Ruhr.

SAYS HE KILLED WHILE IN FIT OF MAD RAGE

Admits Gerbes Murder In Signed Story; Tells of 2-Year "Affair."

By W. T. BUCHANAN
Marion Star City Editor

Edwin D. Young, 39, former Marion stone truck driver, has confessed to Marion officials that he killed Mrs. Zora Hess Gerbes, 25, last July 11 in a fit of mad rage.

The confession was given to three Marion officials in the Otero county jail at LaJunta, Colo., last night. It came shortly after Prosecuting Attorney James E. Reed, Special Prosecutor Russell M. Wilhelm and Sheriff LaRoy Retterer arrived there to take Young into custody following his Jan. 4 arrest at Holly, Colo., on a charge of writing bad checks.

The three Marion men late last night returned to Lamar, Colo., 55 miles east of LaJunta, where Young had been held in jail following his arrest until Wednesday when Sheriff John Hodson took him to LaJunta for safe keeping.

Extradition Hearing Today

In a long distance telephone conversation this morning Prosecutor Reed told The Star the three officials would return to LaJunta, pick up the prisoner and board a train for Denver. They were scheduled to attend an extradition hearing there before the Colorado governor at 2 p. m. mountain time (4 p. m. Marion time) today. If they are able to keep to their present schedule they expect to leave Denver for home Sunday and expect to return from Chicago over the Pennsylvania railroad, to Crestline at a time not yet determined.

The prosecutor told The Star that Young gave Sheriff Retterer a typewritten statement a page and a half in length in which he admitted the slaying. After the statement had been typewritten Young signed it, Mr. Reed said.

Tells of 2-Year Acquaintance

Young said he had known Mrs. Gerbes for more than two years, first having met her in New Philadelphia early in 1945, and that he had "had an affair with her until the night of the slaying."

He told Sheriff Retterer that on the night of July 11 he had a date with Mrs. Gerbes and that he picked her up at a West Center street beer parlor. He added that they bought 10 bottles of beer on North Main street and drove in his old model car to Delaware. They remained until closing time in a Delaware drinking place.

Arrive at Churchyard

Returning by way of route 23 to Waldo they took route 98 to the St. Paul church yard, which is five miles southeast of Marion.

They stopped there and drank the last bottle of beer.

At this point in his statement Young told of the actual slaying.

"I got mad and lost my head when she told me she had a venereal disease. I don't know why I did it.

"I put the rope (a seven-foot section of cotton clothes line) around her neck and pulled it tight. When she fell down I tied her up."

No Test Evidence, Coroner Says

In the telephone conversation this morning Prosecutor Reed said he "didn't think too much" of the "disease angle" of Young's apparent motive. Dr. E. H. Morgan, county coroner, who conducted an autopsy of the body, said this morning that tests showed no evidence of diseased organs at the time they were made.

Mrs. Gerbes was found strangled with a slip knot passed three times around her neck. The end of the rope then was passed under her knees and pulled tight until her knees almost touched her chin.

Surprised by Brothers

Young went on to describe how the Charles and Harry Yeager brothers, living near the church, surprised him at the scene.

Prosecutor Reed said Young quoted almost the exact conversation with the Yeagers as they later reported it to officials here.

He said that after they took his license number he thought "it was all over." He said he offered to go with the brothers when they left to call the sheriff from a nearby house. (The Yeagers reported he actually tried to get into their car, but was prevented from doing so when they left, not knowing the woman they saw lying on the ground was dead.)

When the Yeagers left Young said he drove away, going first to Bucyrus and then heading west.

Young said the rope had been in his car and that he had used it to tie up packages. The long

Slaying Confessed by Young

with which he formed the slip knot, already was tied.

Ready To "Talk"

Prosecutor Reed said Young greeted the officers warmly when they arrived at LaJunta. He talked readily and appeared anxious to "get the matter off his mind."

His only reticence came when the officers first arrived in company with Sheriff Hodson, District Attorney Gordon Allot and the sheriff at LaJunta, George Freidenberger.

"I think I'll wait until we get back to Ohio before I tell you anything. I don't want to talk before all these people out here," Reed quoted him as saying. When the Colorado officers left the room Young talked readily to Sheriff Retterer.

He said he had expected to be "picked up any time" and knew his arrest was coming sooner or later. He added that he had thought of returning to Ohio and would have done so had it not been for the fact he made good money working as a farm hand in Colorado and Kansas. Prosecutor Reed said he had earned $15 a day and that he had $300 on his person when arrested.

He gave no explanation of his Christmas day marriage in New Mexico to a 22-year-old Holly school teacher, Geneva Markim.

Just Wanted More Money

He also left unexplained his reason for writing bad checks in the Holly area since he had been earning good money. The prosecuter said Young apparently spent the check money for clothes. The clothes, Reed said, have been reclaimed by the stores from which they were purchased.

Although Sheriff Hodson said yesterday Young's new wife had not been at the jail to visit him, Prosecutor Reed said today he had learned that she did call last Saturday. He quoted Colorado officers as saying she expressed regret that she "would have to go back to driving her Model T Ford car." Young had placed the license plates from his wife's auto on his 1933 Chevrolet coupe.

Kept Car Hidden

The prosecutor also said that despite Young's earlier statement that he had used his car all the time he was in the Kansas-Colorado area, he actually had hidden it behind his tourist camp cabin for two months. Young told the officers he used his car for a trip to Seattle, Wash., in November.

Although questioned by Colorado officers at Lamar and LaJunta, Young made no statement to incriminate himself. At LaJunta Sheriff Freidenberger told the Associated Press Young disclaimed any knowledge of the killing. He said Young told him he left Marion that night with two men and that the "next thing he knew he was alone in his car parked in a field."

Within a few hours after the discovery of Mrs. Gerbes' body in the churchyard Marion officers had broadcast to other states a description of his car and his Ohio license numbers, Q-4846.

Stopped Twice by Police

He was able to slip through unnoticed, however, although he related he was stopped twice by Illinois state police. Once was for a warning for reckless driving and the other time when an officer suspected him of driving while drunk. He said he also had been stopped in Colorado because his car did not bear brake inspection stamps.

Hears News Report

Mr. Reed quoted Young as saying he heard the first news report of the Marion slaying when he stopped in a small Missouri town to get something to eat. In the restaurant he overheard another customer reading a news account aloud to a group of others.

Here Young revealed another previously unknown angle to the case. He said he did not know the murder victim by the name of Gerbes, but by the name of Zora Hess, her maiden name.

Young told the officers "I figured they were reading about me even if I didn't recognize the Gerbes name."

Prosecutor Reed said he was called at his hotel this morning by a Lamar newspaper concerning a report that Young was wanted in Tennessee for a filling station murder and holdup. He placed no credence in the report.

The statement that Young had known Mrs. Gerbes for more than two years was amplified in his statement to the Marion officers.

Tells of First Meeting

He was quoted as saying he first met her early in 1945, standing in the rain on a street corner in New Philadelphia. The officers said he made some unexplained statement that she had been ejected from an automobile there.

At that time Young was driving a coal truck from New Philadelphia to Marion for the Tony Glass Trucking Co. of the Tuscarawas county city. He said he picked her up the night he first saw her and brought her back to Marion in his truck. He saw her frequently on subsequent trips to Marion, he said. About a year ago Young brought his crippled wife and small son to live in Marion. The wife and child were abandoned in their Midlam avenue trailer home when Young disappeared the morning of the slaying.

Hodson Claims Reward

The $1,000 reward offered here for the arrest of Young has been claimed by Sheriff Hodson, Prosecutor Reed said this morning. The fund was raised by $100 personal contributions of Prosecutor Reed and Sheriff Retterer and through public solicitation by Lee Kellis, stepfather of Mrs. Gerbes. Colorado peace officers are permitted by law to accept reward money Prosecutor Reed said.

Prosecutor Reed said this morning the Marion party had received excellent cooperation from Colorado officers. He added that Gordon Allott, district attorney for five counties which included Lamar, now is a Republican candidate for governor of Colorado.

GM, CHRYSLER SEEN AS 1ST UAW TARGETS

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Jan. 17 — The CIO United Auto Workers' new "wage package" demand — amounting to an equivalent 30 cents an hour —was before the union's General Motors conference today as the 200-man group gathered for a planning session.

Yesterday the UAW-CIO executive board unanimously approved a third round wage increase demand of 25 cents an hour and an additional five cents in health and medical insurance.

The GM conference members, delegates of some 250,000 employes of 75 General Motors plants across the nation, were the first rank-and-file representatives to view officially the union's latest proposals, which also include a guaranteed weekly wage and a three-week vacation with pay for five-year employes.

Later the union's Chrysler national conference will be assembled to pass on the demands, UAW-CIO President Walter P. Reuther announced.

Either General Motors Corp. or Chrysler Corp. may be designated by the big auto workers union as the first "target" for its newly-mapped program, Reuther said yesterday, adding that a decision on the matter would be made soon by the UAW's top policy board.

Shortly after the operating Brotherhoods announced their strike deadline, President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen disclosed that his union's International Association of General Chairmen last week directed him to seek 15-day paid vacations and Sunday and holiday overtime and to implement a wage-increase movement "if and when the cost of living" warranted.

The Trainmen's 190,000 members in the U.S.A. and 20,000 in Canada now get a week's vacation and straight time for holidays and Sundays, Whitney said.

"These matters will be handled in the next few months, but not immediately," Whitney added. He said his next step probably would be to appoint a wage committee of 10 members under power granted by the Chairmen's association.

VETS, AUXILIARY INSTALL OFFICERS

U.S.W.V. Groups Hold Meeting at Legion Dugout.

Following an annual custom members of Marion Camp No. 32, United Spanish War Veterans and Betsy Ross Auxiliary No. 14, held joint installation ceremonies when the recently-elected officers of the two organizations took over their duties Friday night at the Legion Dugout. A dinner at 6:30 o'clock was a social feature of the meeting.

Walter H. Melby was installed as commander of the veterans' camp and Mrs. Aletha Schultz will serve as president of the women's auxiliary.

Mrs. Emma Bondley, a past president of the auxiliary and also a past president of the state auxiliary, presided as the installing officer of the auxiliary. Taking office with Mrs. Schultz are the following: Mrs. Dorothy Howald, senior vice commander; Mrs. Fanny Call, junior vice commander; Mrs. Mercedes Byrnes, historian; Mrs. Susie Wederitz, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Dolly Anthony, conductress; Mrs. Emma Campbell, associate conductress; Mrs. Mabel Poulin, guard; Mrs. Pauline Platz, assistant guard; Mrs. Hattie Richards, chaplain; Mrs. Emma Bondley, secretary; Mrs. Mary Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Beth Monk, musician; Mrs. Callie Howison, Mrs. Ellen Poland, Mrs. Anna Jones and Mrs. Marie Wells, colorbearers. At the close of the ceremony Mrs. Bondley presented Mrs. Susie Wedertz, retiring president a past president's pin.

Serving with Mr. Melby as officers of the camp will be the following: James E. Messenger senior vice commander; R. M. Miller, junior vice commander; Elmer E. Bondley, adjutant; James G. Orahood, quartermaster; John Monk, three-year trustee; Zed Gunder, patriotic instructor; Lang Johnson, historian; Dr. E. H. Morgan, surgeon; Fred H. Morrison, chaplain; Franklin B. Scott, officer of the day; Maurice S. Britt, officer of the guard; R. M. Miller, sergeant major; James E. Messenger, quartermaster-sergeant; George Platz, senior colorbearer; Arthur Campbell junior colorbearer. R. M. Miller presided as the installing officer and James E. Messenger served as master of ceremonies. This year will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of the war between the United States and Spain.

In taking over the office of commander Mr. Melby expressed his appreciation of the honor and confidence given him by the veterans and also paid tribute to the auxiliary for its support of the work of the camp. Referring to present world conditions he placed communism as the most-talked-of topic. Defining communism as hatred, hunger, starvation and death, he said this country should have no fear of it as long as it has the allegiance of the Spanish War veterans and veterans of later wars as its defense. Informal talks were given by several of the members of the camp and auxiliary.

At a meeting of the auxiliary in the afternoon the members contributed $2 to the March of Dimes campaign. Mrs. Hattie Richards, chaplain, opened the meeting with devotions and Mrs. Susie Wedertz presided for the business session. A social hour followed with contest honors going to Mrs. Wedertz. Later tables were arranged for cards.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17 — A 33-year-old detective wounded two men, one perhaps fatally, early today in a gun battle with three bandits who attempted to hold up a west side tavern.

The officer, Robert Hogg, pumped three bullets into a man identified by police as John Urrasko, 25, who was reported near death in St. John's hospital.

His two companions escaped, but Hogg declared one of them staggered as he ran from the tavern, Kay's lounge bar.

WHITNEY QUITS PCA ON 3RD PARTY ISSUE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17—A. F. Whitney resigned from the Progressive Citizens of America today because "I cannot go along in its endorsement of a third party."

Whitney, president of the powerful Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, has been a member of PCA's board of directors, and sat on the stage when Henry A. Wallace, PCA's presidential candidate, recently spoke here.

In a resignation letter to C. B. Baldwin, executive vice chairman of PCA, Whitney wrote:

"Idealism must often be tempered with enough realism to keep lofty goals from being forever out of reach. Experience of 50 years in the realistic world of dealing with the railroads in collective bargaining has taught me that.

"That is why I cannot go along with PCA in its endorsement of a third party for the elections of 1948. * * * In my opinion, a third party can do nothing but pave the way for even more reaction than we have now and promote countless confusion in the ranks of all liberals."

HOFFMAN REPORTS ON STRIKES IN OHIO

Galion, Mt. Gilead, Kenton Included in Findings.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) said yesterday his investigation of strikes in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana indicated that amendment of the Taft-Hartley act may be necessary to keep struck plants open to employes who want to work.

He reported to congress on investigations he made for the house labor committee of strikes at Clinton, Benton Harbor and Dowagiac, Mich., Michigan City, Ind., and Galion, Mount Gilead and Kenton, O.

"It may be that a policy of law enforcement, fostered * * * by governors of various states, may sound the death knell of the goon squad, of the violences, coercion and intimidation which * * * have prevented the individual workers from exercising his right to work," he said.

"If it does not, then an amendment to the Taft-Hartley act, defining mass picketing, preventing picketing of local plants by invading sympathizers, * * * may be necessary.

"If an effective legal remedy is not found, the hearings indicate clearly that then will come armed resistance to goon-squad methods, especially in the smaller communities, where farmers and others have children and wives employed in the factories."

Hoffman said the states have laws to protect citizens but in recent years the policy of law-enforcement officials in Michigan and "many other places" has been to excuse 'all sorts of violations" during labor disputes.

GALION

A. Poister) took place at the home of Poister, at 5 p. m., Dec. 31, just four hours after Mayor Amann said that no action would be taken by his administration, and that a decision would be left to the new regime. Poister said today that he advised Amann "that some action should be taken on the bids, and that they should not just be left to hang for the new administration."

News of the rejection of the bids "leaked out" only Friday when a representative of one of the outside power companies called a Galion citizen and said that return of a certified check had been made to his company, and he wondered if the other power company had been the successful bidder. A check with the representative of the other utility revealed the return of that certified check also.

Not Known to Public

Until Friday, the public of Galion had been under the impression that the two bids were being carried over to the Hartmann administration in order to give the new administration officials an opportunity to study the bids and act upon them.

Part of the minutes of the board of control in its action, Dec. 31, read: ".....bids received Oct. 20, 1947 for electrical energy be rejected because we were unable to decide which bid was the lowest and best bid on account of the injunction served on Nov. 24, 1947, restraining us to go ahead with the purchase of the Diesel engine."

Other Last-Minute Actions

Action by the board of control, Dec. 31, also rejected bids for a concrete block building to house the Diesel generating unit which had been ordered, and later was held up by the taxpayers' injunction which charged the purchase as illegal. Another rejection was the bid of Sept. 19, 1947, for purchase and installation of necessary equipment and materials for flood lights at East Side Park because of insufficient funds.

Attorney Kenneth M. Petri, who has long been a proponent of supplementary energy with an outside power company, said rejection of bids was "most unusual." Mayor H. H. Hartmann also said the fate of the bids "was public property." He said that purchase of supplemental energy will be studied with other means of securing power later on, possibly around March 1. Former Acting City Solicitor Robert L. Moulton said he had no knowledge that the bids had been thrown out.

Liquidate Ranch Of Former Marionites

Announcement of the final liquidation of the Moorcroft Sheep Co. of Moorcroft, Wyo., at the beginning of the year brought to an end one of the largest livestock undertakings in northern Wyoming and one in which former Marion men took a major part in operating.

The company was incorporated in October 1907 by E. L. Jackson, S. A. Guthrie, Walter Curran and Rodney King, with office headquarters at the Empire Sheep Co. ranch adjoining Moorcroft. Mr. Guthrie a native of Marion county, also served as sheriff before going to Wyoming to enter the sheep business. A former Marion man, Bert Waddell of Moorcroft is one of two surviving directors of the company. Mr. Curran, who is the only surviving incorporator, is now living in the vicinity of Casper, Wyo. Mr. Waddell went west as a young man.

The company was reorganized after the disastrous winter of 1911-12 when the Jackson and Guthrie interests bought out the other stockholders. Information regarding the closing of the company's business was received by relatives here in a newspaper article carried in a Newcastle, Wyo., paper.

The company was one of several interrelated corporations and partnerships all of which have been liquidated. Following the death of Mr. Guthrie in 1923 a partial liquidation of the land holdings was made. Following the death of Mrs. S. A. Guthrie in 1941 final liquidation was decided upon which was followed by three auction sales of personal property spaced at intervals as the land holdings were disposed of.

The original investment in the Empire Sheep company, then a partnership, in 1899 on the old 101 ranch near Moorcroft was $20,000. Final totals of all sales of capital assets from 1923 to final liquidation were in excess of $300,000.

A few hundred head of cattle and 82,000 sheep were handled by the Empire Sheep Co. in 1908 when 30 days were required to run them through the shearing pens and dipping vats. Often as many as 100 persons were employed at the shearing pens in those days. Grocery bills often ran to $3,000 or more a month, even with the low prices then prevailing.

Cheap-Money Scramble: Round 3

UNITED AUTO WORKERS will open the big-union drive for higher wage rates in 1948. This is the third round in the cheap-money scramble. The first, in the spring of 1946, set a pattern of an 18½-cent raise. A year later the pattern was a 15-cent raise.

The big unions have demonstrated what they can do. No one doubts that the UAW has the power to cheapen the buying power of money still further in the annual process of trying to beat inflation with higher rates of pay. The unions still have produced no statesman with the courage to point out what is obviously true—that the unions can make more inflation or make less and would be doing a service to the country if they took the initiative in stabilizing wage rates to drive prices down.

In consequence of union policy—or perhaps it's a lack of policy—every person living on a fixed income will get it in the neck again. These helpless victims of inflation are being wiped out by inflation. They are aged persons living on pensions, savings and investments. They are students trying to buy an education with baloney dollars. They are widows, salary earners—all the unpublicized victims of the tragedy of money being robbed of its buying power by the scramble to cheapen it, then to get enough more to make up for the cheapness. At the beginning of round 3 of the scramble they are the most concerned and the least considered spectators.

Sherlock Holmes on Wheels

OHIO communities can make good use of the mobile crime detection laboratory being prepared for statewide service by the Ohio welfare department.

After next Feb. 15 any community needing help to solve a crime can call on this laboratory on wheels, which will be equipped with apparatus not found in local police departments and sheriffs' offices. In effect, it will be an extension of the welfare department's bureau of criminal identification and investigation, which will furnish the personnel for its operation.

The laboratory is being paid for by the Buckeye State Sheriffs' association and Ohio Moose lodges. If the idea works, they deserve the credit. Too often in the past, crime detection has been bungled needlessly by lack of equipment and know-how, particularly in small communities that had no means of getting special equipment and experts.

Russia Gets a Dun

LIKE a creditor coughing discreetly behind his hand, Uncle Sam is bringing up the matter of Russia's $11,000,000,000 lend-lease bill, which has been the subject of intermittent discussion since the war's end. With the new ambassador, Panyushkin, in Washington, the subject again is brought out of the files.

What we are asking from Russia is more than we propose to send to Europe in the first year of the Marshall plan. It is a sum so vast that even a prosperous, fully-recovered Russia would be taxed to pay it if she were so disposed—and there is no evidence that she is.

Russian accounts receivable on file in Washington are in much the same category as reparations so carefully levied against the vanquished by the victors. Just as modern war reparations are a fallacy, so materiel exchanged between embattled allies is not readily retrievable once the allies achieve peace.

However, we may be able to reclaim from Russia some of the ships we sent her; also possibly some caviar, furs and gold dug out of the Siberian earth to be solemnly reinterred at Fort Knox. But we had better not count on Russian repayment to meet Marshall plan commitments.

Overhauling Army Justice

THE law overhauling army court-martial procedure appears destined for quick passage by congress. The measure will permit enlisted men to sit on courts, will authorize a judge advocate general corps removed from the influence of local commanders and will change trial procedure for officers, who usually are brought to trial only when charged with serious misconduct.

The Army system of justice hasn't kept pace with the times. Punishments have varied greatly, according to the standards of discipline within a command. In many cases, commanders have told courts what was expected of them. Officers have got off with reprimands for acts for which enlisted men were fined or imprisoned. A master sergeant of 25 years' service was deemed unfit to sit on a court while a second lieutenant of six months' service was.

With the overhauling of the system, it will be wise to keep a close watch and rectify injustices as they are spotted rather than let the complaints accumulate until drastic changes have to be made.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Some Things Wrong with British Viewpoint.

ARTHUR BRYANT, writing in "The Illustrated London News," repeats one of the most constant arguments not only in England but throughout Europe concerning American aid. Bryant says:

"... One thing is certain: That only a part of the great sum which the American generously loaned to Britain has actually benefited the peoples of this country; much has been canceled out by the rise in American prices and the increased sum Britain has had to pay for American food oil, tobacco and films; still more, owing to the convertibility clauses, has passed to America's customers in other countries and to neutral nations who contributed goods to the democratic cause on an interest basis while debtor Britain was not only contributing goods and human lives gratis but guaranteeing to pay neutral capitalists perpetual interest on their own limited contributions."

SOKOLSKY

Several fallacies are included in this one sentence:

1. The American people did not benefit from the British loan; in fact, as of today's date, that loan represents a total loss. If the loan benefited neither the British nor the American people, why was it made? At the time the loan was being negotiated, Senator Taft, Bernard Baruch, and, if you will pardon the inclusion, this writer said that the loan would be of no benefit to anybody.

2. The loan was intended to establish credits in this country for productive goods; instead, as Mr. Bryant admits, it was used principally for consumers' goods, increasing shortages here and contributing to rising prices. The loan was intended to put Great Britain on her feet productively and was so advertised by its proponents.

3. The British had the choice of rehabilitating their industries or using their money for tobacco and films along with necessities; the choice was theirs to make and they made it badly. A Socialist government, operating by barter, confusing the livelihood of the people with their own continuance in office, could not but have made a bad choice.

Question of Monopolies

4. The convertibility clause was just. The British had bound certain nations to buy only in British markets, even if the British lacked the goods and the purchaser required them desperately. This was a monopolistic closing of world market to the United States. This country ought never to agree to monopolies. The open door policy is a sounder principle. Convertibility means, in this case, turning blocked pounds into dollars.

5. Mr. Bryant seems to feel that only Great Britain contributed "goods and human lives gratis" to the war. Upon it the United States spent more than $330,000,000,000 and raised a military force of 11,000,000. To Great Britain alone the United States gave at least $35,000,000,000 of direct contribution, to which must be added many other aids, as, for instance, the artificial maintenance of the pound sterling.

Never Refused Money

6. His reference to "neutral capitalists" comes distastefully from a country that for centuries sold debentures and drew interest. The time to have thought about interest payments was when the bond was drawn, not when payments need to be made. After all, when the British wanted the money, they were willing to take it under stipulated conditions. When a private individual goes back on the terms of his agreement, we call him a welcher. Does Mr. Bryant wish such a term applied to his country?

The time has come to call a halt to this nonsense. This country has been overly generous to nations good or bad, friend or foe. We have given until it is hurting. I use the word, given, instead of lent, because that is the fact. The least we need to expect is a "thank you, sir," but that we shall keep on expecting. If any country does not need or want our aid, we can use every pound of what they take right here at home. It is not necessary for us to export twice our annual surplus. It is not essential for us to export very much. In fact, these exports are harming us. That is why the Marshall plan is so unpopular and unwanted.

It ought to be made clear to everybody that from lend-lease to ERP, the United States has been engaging not in good business but in expensive, even in profligate, philanthropy.

He Won't Be Able To Patch This Up

In Birmingham, a carnival rubber man has been arrested for violation of the selective service act.

He'll probably be sent away for a stretch.

It's a shame he never got into the Army. He'd have been able to put some real snaps in his salutes.

In fact, he would even have been a natural for the paratroops, what with all that bounce.

He had plenty of elasticity, but not much patriotism. Otherwise, he'd at least have volunteered for the scrap drive.

Even if he had proved a 4-F, he could certainly have relieved a retread for active duty.

Diplomacy vs. Management

By Raymond Moley

SECRETARY MARSHALL'S arguments before the committees of congress leave the major question about ERP exactly where it was two months ago. Is the state department qualified to direct and administer the program suggested? Marshall's answer is that he is "concerned in finding the best possible organization and management for the program." But since it is clear that he intends to operate the program within the organization and authority of the state department, his answer is not sufficient to bring forth the confidence and support of the country. It is now up to congress to supply a better answer.

MOLEY

The inadequacy of the state department to administer ERP is rooted in the very nature and functions of the diplomatic arm of the government. The materials with which a foreign service deals are ideas, policies and information. A foreign service does not deal, except through words written on paper, with actual construction of concrete things or even with the prudent spending or investment of money. By training, experience and temperament, men in the foreign service are unsuited to what Secretary Marshall admits is "primarily a business, technical and engineering job."

Ickes Was Cautious

A similar situation arose in 1933, when congress authorized $3,300,000,000 for public works. The president handed the job of administration to Interior Secretary Ickes. The money was not spent rapidly, due in part to the extreme caution of Ickes. But it was spent honestly and fairly efficiently. The advantage of giving it to Ickes, however, was that the interior department, with which public works were closely related, was an institution dealing with concrete things like land management, reclamation, parks, mines and the like.

But the state department is not even distantly related in nature and function to the interior department. To set up an engineering show in that atmosphere of sealing wax, spats and gossipy reports would be like putting an iron foundry into a hospital.

It is no disparagement to suggest that General Marshall's training does not suit him for such a job. Undersecretary Lovett is a very able man who is familiar with large business enterprises. His contact, however, has been that of a banker, not a manager. There are strong reasons for believing that Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas is under consideration for the European and of ERP. Again, we have distinguished ability in many lines, but little managerial experience. Former Senator Robert M. LaFollette is being suggested for the American end of the job. Here, also, are great honesty and distinguished ability. But La Follette's experience has been in politics and legislation. Even William Clayton's experience was in trade and commerce.

Qualifications Lacking

As we go down the line into the rank and file of the foreign service, the unsuitability of personnel for a recovery program grows more pronounced. To give this job to such personnel would be like permitting the faculty of a liberal arts college to run a steel plant.

The basic element in the whole program is the rehabilitation of industry, transportation and communication in Germany, France and Italy. The direction of such an enterprise should be in the hands of an independent agency headed by the best industrial and engineering brains that can be found.

Timber Research

Oregon is building what it expects will be the largest state-operated wood products research plant in the nation, the Council of State Governments reports.

Money for expansion of the forest products laboratory at Oregon State College will come from Oregon's new privilege tax on cut lumber. The tax will yield an estimated $300,000 a year.

The Bonneville Power administration, the Southern Pacific railroad and other industries are cooperating in the wood-research program aimed at more complete utilization of timber waste and byproducts.

First new unit planned for the research lab is a plant to produce a ton of charcoal a day from sawdust. The special method used has been developed by the college. Another project is the perfection of railroad ties made from secondary trees which are not now being used commercially.

Picking the Winnah

By Frank Tripp

THIS week ye chronicler will be making a speech to newspapermen. There's nothing unusual or exciting about that except the political significance of it; in spite of the fact that I never made a political speech in my life.

The speech is going to be about television—of which I know nothing. Thus will be able to talk convincingly about it. Maybe the political significance is all in my own mind; maybe not.

TRIPP

The affair is going to be in Albany, where Tom Dewey works. You've heard of Tom. He's going to make a speech, too; which probably will not be a political speech either, but he can't say he never made one.

The political angle comes in a silly way. To my slightly superstitious and admittedly feeble mind it could have a bearing on the national Republican ticket this fall.

What few dollars I've won on horse races has always been on hunches and peculiar reasons for picking what turned out to be a winner, through no fault of mine—and certainly through no knowledge of horses.

I'm taking a long time getting around to my hunch, but you see if I get my pay I have to stretch these yarns out to reasonable length. The length is usually the only reasonable thing about 'em.

Well, here's the dope; and if you place money on it and lose, don't blame me or ask for a refund because I'll be losing along with you.

For the last 12 years there's been a peculiar happenstance between newspapermen's conventions, and the men who speak at them and the Republican candidates the succeeding fall.

* * *

There was the time that Frank Knox and I talked to newspapermen in New York and Frank turned up candidate for vice president.

There was the time that John Bricker and I talked to newspapermen in Columbus and John turned up candidate for vice president.

There was the time in April 1940 when I introduced Wendell Willkie at the national newspaper meeting at the Waldorf and you know what happened to him that summer in Philadelphia.

There was the time in 1944 that Tom Dewey and I talked to the same meeting again at the Waldorf and Tom got nominated that time.

So seeing as how Tom and I are going to talk to the newspaper bunch this week in Albany I'm sap enough to believe that maybe the thing can happen again, and again and again.

If you're the betting sort, chances are you've put your money on crazier hunches than these odd coincidences. Because, you see, on none of the four occasions did any of the four men make a political speech, nor did I. None of the four affairs was political, but all were newspaper meetings and all took place in national election years.

I know what you're thinking—and it's a nasty thought. It's that none of the four birds got elected and that if you were Tom Dewey you wouldn't get on a rostrum with me for love or money.

Probably there's something to that, but by the time Tom reads this it'll be too late for him to back out. So the only thing he can do will be to plan some sort of antidote.

Maybe he can get on a speaking program with Jim Farley. Jim can get everybody elected except himself.

Anyway, though none of the guys I've jinxed got elected, still none of 'em ever was out of work.

Woman Diplomats

An increasing number of women are representing the governments of nations in international conferences and organizations, the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor reports.

Releasing a report on international action to improve the status of women, the bureau noted that six countries had women representing them as full delegates at the San Francisco United Nations Conference, while 26 of the 50 nations present sent women in some capacity.

In the League of Nations, it pointed out by contrast, no woman was a full delegate until 1929, and during the entire 25 years of the League's history only eight nations sent women delegates.

The report traces the work done by the Lague of Nations and points out that the UN has vigorously tackled the same subject, appointing a special commission on the status of women, with Britain, France, Russia, White Russia and the United States among its current members.

Crest of the Tide

The flood of former GI's that swelled college attendance to an all-time high this year has reached its peak, a survey of 716 universities reveals.

Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, said 1,149,933 veterans were enrolled in colleges this year, but there was a pronounced decrease in the number of veterans entering college as freshmen.

Dr. Walters, writing in the magazine "School and Society," said the number of veteran freshmen had decreased because many of them have jobs.

The Eyes Have It

Blue eyes and black eyes contain exactly the same coloring pigment, known as melanin, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The difference in color is the result of the way in which light is reflected from the surfaces of the fibers which make up the iris. Black eyes also have more melanin than blue eyes do.

He will put the Christmas bonus on a delicatessen clerk's word that a spavined gee-gee owned and operated by a Joliet grad (on signal from a Chicago gunman), is a gilt-edged investment.

Yet only a generation back Miami was a remote fishing village, and Miami Beach was a man-grove swamp. Coral Gables was an orange grove. Coconut Grove was William Jennings Bryan's winter quarters. Life was normal. Natives roamed the streets without accident policies. People went to bed nights. Oranges were cheap.

The daily double was unknown; the electric rabbit, $8 steak, $45 room and dollar-and-a-half pitcher of fruit juice hadn't been discovered. The Indians were in the swamp, not the night clubs, race tracks and hotel lobbies. And they wore blankets, not silver foxes, slacks and diamond pendants.

It was all done by mirrors. What a land of contradictions! The ritziest street on the beach is named after the humble Lincoln. Miss Fluffy Ruffles

By TRUMAN TWILL

The newest thing the men of this country—the married ones, that is—must get accustomed to is little Miss Fluffy Ruffles making furtive dashes through the bedroom in one of those new super-hoot-nannies that make hips bulge out in the new look for the female equator.

A married male with a brooding disposition is going to find it pretty hard to figure out why his one-and-only should wriggle into one thing to squeeze her in where she's inclined to bulge out, then equip herself with another thing to make her bulge out where she has squeezed herself in. This new look gets thicker all the time. It's beginning to sound like a new philosophy.

The Fluffy Ruffles deception is now an open secret. It's in the ads. A mere man hardly can get through his paper without having his eye stopped by illustrations of something that looks like a sack of feed with awnings on it. If he is quick, a couple of dangling garters tip him to the secret right away, or if he's married he already has heard the giggling. But "it isn't funny, Molly." Where is this thing going to end?

What would the authorities do to a man who bought a pair of shoes to make his feet look small, then had an outer shell built on them to make it look as if his feet were large? That's right. They would drop a net on him from an overhanging tree, let him get all tangled up in it and haul him away to the hatch. What's going to be the next big move—a reducing diet composed exclusively of mashed potatoes, chocolate cake, beer and ice cream?

They'd better call in the engineers and bring designers, to figure out the stresses and strains that make the female figger what it is and isn't. Maybe nature is wrong, or if women want to bulge in some particular place, why not just cut a big hole in the thing that keeps them from bulging and go ahead and bulge? Or if women don't want to bulge all the way around, which seems to be what they're coming to, just leave the anti-bulger at home.

If the engineers can't handle this, better call in the plastic surgeons and the meat cutters. Let the cutters whack some off and the surgeons sew it back on somewhere else. Call in the fellow that sell those gadgets that stay in place with suction cups. Call in the experts that make Boris Karloff look like what he isn't. The fashion designers are beginning to flounder, and if they don't think so let 'em listen to the disrespectful guffaws that are being guffed from coast to coast by the men women are supposed to be trying to please when they wear all that paraphernalia.

How can any man take a woman seriously after he's read the ads and knows there's nothing to that lump but a bunch of fluffy ruffles?

Restaurant Operators Hear Prof. Williams

Robert R. W. Williams, executive vice president of the Ohio State Restaurant association and professor of food economics and industrial organization at Ohio State university, spoke at a meeting of the Marion County Restaurant association Wednesday night at Turoff's restaurant. Thirty members attended. He explained the effect the restaurant association has on both state and national legislation and outlined a plan to better the relationship between restaurant owners and the public. He suggested that the people who eat in restaurants should be permitted to visit the kitchen and see just how the food they eat is prepared. Professor Williams was particularly emphatic in discussing sanitation and pointed out to the restaurant owners the important part they play in maintaining the health of the nation.

Russell Saunders, secretary of the association, announced that the next meeting would be held in the Harding hotel at 8 p. m. Feb. 2. Professor Conkle of the food economics staff of Ohio State university will give the main address, Mr. Saunders said.

Mr. Saunders said that Professor Conkle would talk on "Employe Training" and will demonstrate the proper procedure for cutting different types of meat.

Another phase of the meeting, Mr. Saunders said, was to make plans to hold "open house" in the Marion restaurants for a week in March. At that time tours by school groups, and civic and social groups will be welcome to inspect the restaurants of Marion county.

In a special meeting to be held during the week of "open house" in March, Marion will be host to a representative of Australia's Restaurant association who will arrive in the United States on Jan. 25, Mr. Saunders said.

Green Camp House Damaged by Fire

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP, Jan. 17 — Fire, thought to have been started by a defective flue, did considerable damage to the Arthur Rosebrough residence in Green Camp Thursday afternoon. The fire was discovered by employes of the Green Camp Elevator Co. and also at the same time by Mr. Rosebrough, who had been asleep in the home, at about 2:30 p. m. Volunteer firemen extinguished the blaze in about an hour. The greatest loss resulted from water loosening plaster in the kitchen and the burning of electric wires. The loss is covered by insurance.

MORROW CO. SOLONS VOTE RECORD APPROPRIATIONS

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD—Morrow county commissioners approved 1948 appropriations this week. A grand total of $362,230.06, the largest amount ever, was appropriated. Last year only $268,482.58 was alloted.

Increase was made necessary this year because of the necessity of having a reappraisement of real estate valuations, an increase in election costs and expected additional road improvements. Increase was made possible when the county received more money than anticipated from the gasoline tax and sales tax funds of the state. Greater amounts of money from the same sources are expected this year.

Cost of the reappraisement of real estate in the county has been estimated at $8,500 and is an added item of expense in the budget of County Auditor Harold Taylor. Taylor expects the appraisal to start in April and to be completed this year. Four local persons will be appointed to make the appraisement.

Largest item of expense is $180,017 for county highway maintenance, repair and machinery.

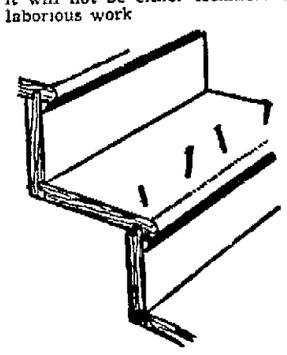
Creaking Stairs and a Way To Cure Them.

Fifteen or 20 years ago a creaking staircase usually meant that the house was very old or had been rather badly built. Today, it is unusual to find stairs in a new house which do not creak or groan This is caused by the use of badly seasoned lumber, plus poorly constructed stairs When unseasoned stock is used for the treads and risers of a staircase, the close-fitting joints will shrink as the wood dries out, and leave just enough play between the assembled parts to allow them to rub together as weight is applied and lifted from the steps. When this is the case, the noise developed by a flight of steps under use will increase as time passes In good stair-building, the risers and treads are interlocked by a method of fitting called "shoulder-housing" which is illustrated here, and are further secured by ample gluing In quick, careless building, where the object is to finish a house to meet a price, solid practices are discarded, and stairs are built without any attention to solidity and permanence.

In spite of the worst kind of stair construction, the owner can often tighten them up so that they are quiet under use, and will stop shaking apart It may take considerable study and patience, but it will not be either technical or laborious work



A new staircase should have seasoned properly in six or eight months if it is in a heated house It may take a year and a half in an unheated house There is not much use in working on it until that length of time has elapsed. The first thing to do is to remove the molding under the edge or nose of the tread or step Next you drive two-inch finishing nails down through the tread and into the riser as shown in the illustration These should be in a straight line and the correct distance in from the edge, but they should be driven in at an angle or "toed-in" as shown. A board with several nails driven in straight, is easy to pull up, but if the nails are "toed-in" they will be very hard to pull out The nailheads should be sunk below the surface of the tread and the holes filled with putty or plastic wood.

The next step is to replace the molding. When this is done, you should not use the old nail-holes, but drive at new points, and toe the nails as well.

It is not necessary to use more than four nails in each tread Very often two nails will do the trick the best procedure is to use two, do not replace the molding for a few days, and see if they will hold the tread

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Canvas for Sun-Deck

Q.: Would it be advisable to use deck canvas on a sun-deck which also serves as a porch and entrance to a second-floor apartment? How should it be laid on a floor? This flooring was treated with creosote wood preservative before it was laid, consequently paint peels off in no time I even gave it a coat of aluminum paint to seal in the creosote, but it also peeled off, with the floor enamel that was applied over the aluminum paint The flooring is beginning to decay in places. Would sheet aluminum be practical?

A.: Get a heavy roofing canvas of the best quality. The boards of the deck should fit closely, with no uneven places Defective boards should be replaced On this put a fairly thick bed of white lead made into a soft paste by adding linseed oil. Stretch the first strip of canvas at the edge of the roof, rolling it into the paste and securing it with long copper tacks put in an inch apart all around. Lay the second strip with its edge overlapping the edge of the first one by 2 inches Put paste under the overlap and secure by tacks. Continue in this way When the roof is covered, put on a priming coat of porch paint or deck enamel and, when it is dry, two more coats of the same, used as it comes in the can Manufacturers of roofing canvas publish leaflets giving complete instructions on this work

Enameled Kitchen Walls

Q.: Please advise me how to prepare my enameled kitchen walls and ceiling for wallpapering

A: I advise you not to hang wallpaper in your kitchen, your enamel is a much better finish If it has become dingy, wash the surfaces with a fairly strong solution of trisodium phosphate (large paint store) about a cupful in a gallon of water Be sure to rinse off all traces of the solution and allow to dry very thoroughly If any gloss remains, it should be dulled with sandpaper You then can repaint with another coat of enamel of the same color. If you prefer some other type of finish, you could use a wall linoleum, tile, tileboard, or a washable type of wallcloth. If the wallcloth is chosen, prepare the walls by cleaning and dulling the gloss Then apply a glue size You probably will need experienced help

Filling Stovepipe Opening

Q.: How can I remove the cap and cover an old stovepipe opening in the wall? We have gas heat, so I believe there would be no danger to wallpaper from furnace sparks or flames

A.: You should be able to pull out the old cap over the stovepipe opening with a strong tool like a chisel or anything that can be inserted into the joint Then fill with brick and mortar, and nail metal lath in place and plaster over it. For this a patching plaster can be used (Professional work may be necessary.)

Your Good Health

Nasal Passages During Pregnancy

It is a rather strange fact that during pregnancy many women develop signs of blocking of the nasal passages which may continue until after the baby is born.

Difficulty in breathing through the nose seems to develop particularly during the final six months It usually becomes worse when the patient is lying down, and there may also be a discharge of mucus and some sneezing.

As this blocking of the nasal passages continues, a secondary infection of the sinuses, or air spaces connected with the nose, develops.

When these symptoms first start, they often may be relieved by nose drops containing such substances as ephedrine or epinphrine which shrink the lining membrane of the nose. However, the improvement is only temporary, and in fact, the symptoms tend to become even worse than before, so that stronger doses of the drugs are required and they must be used at even shorter intervals. Sooner or later, the blocking of the nose is present almost constantly and relief for only a few minutes is obtained from the use of the nose drops.

Finally, in order to overcome the nasal symptoms, the use of the drugs must be cut down, if not stopped entirely. Thus, it is suggested that such treatment must be avoided altogether. In its stead, quieting drugs or sedatives, such as the barbiturates can be employed with small doses of atropine The latter aids in drying up the mucus secretions.

The application of heat in the form of hot compresses, exposure to an infra-red lamp, the use of diathermy, or an electric means of producing heat deep in the tissues may give much comfort. The same measures are often found helpful in fighting off sinus infection if it is present

The sulfonamide drugs and penicillin may also be employed for the sinus infections in some cases

Recently, another method for treating this condition has been suggested. It consists of injecting a solution of sodium psylliate into the mucus membrane. Following the injection, there is some slight discomfort, but this lasts only a short time

In from three to five days the symptoms begin to clear up and, in about ten days, it will be noted that some shrinking of the tissues has occurred In most cases during this time, the symptoms of sneezing and nasal discharge also tend to disappear. In any event, the patient becomes much more comfortable.

Of course, when symptoms of blocking of the nasal passages develop, a nose and throat specialist should be consulted at once He will determine the best treatment to be carried out.

Global Scene

By DeWitt Mackenzie

NEW YORK

HEN one is engaged in a fight to a finish—even though it is a "cold" war—it's only horse sense to acquaint oneself with the methods of the enemy.

This column therefore again calls attention to "Protocol M"—the secret Communist plan for conquering western Germany and thereby rendering the Marshall plan unworkable. The protocol is a prime example of the unscrupulous efficiency of Bolshevist methods, and consequently is worthy of study.

MACKENZIE

Use the term "unscrupulous" liberately, for the protocol is a top-drawer secret which mysteriously went astray—is based on typical Bolshevist revolutionary methods in which no holds are barred, and which calls for unscrupulous" tactics. To quote the language of that amazing document, as published by the Polish foreign office.

The unconditional prerequisites for the impending final victory of the working class are the maintenance of discipline among the comrades and (get this!) the unscrupulous employment of all revolutionaries. There must be no doubt that in order to achieve this final victory all the weapons of the proletariat are utilized."

Those weapons, as used by Bolshevism, of course include not only the creation of chaos through strikes and disorders, but the destruction"—which your dictionary says means, among other things, to "wipe out" or "destroy"—covers many blood-chilling methods, among which are death and various types of imprisonment.

LEST THERE BE any doubt about who is back of this scheme for disrupting the efforts of the western democracies to rehabilitate Germany, the protocol declares:

"The home of Socialism, the Soviet Union, can and will support this battle against the monopoly-capitalist powers with every means at her disposal. The Communist information bureau in Belgrade (widely believed to be a revival of the comintern, or general staff for world revolution) will coordinate the common battle of all Socialists movements in Europe."

Right here it should be pointed out that Russia isn't the home of Socialism in the generally accepted sense of that term. It is the home of Communism on which has been imposed Bolshevism, or revolutionary methods. The Socialists of Britain and some other countries of western Europe have disavowed the Communists—and the Communists have disavowed the Socialists.

THE PROTOCOL AS published in London lays down the long range strategy and the tactics which are to be employed. This covers every eventuality, such as the wholesale creation of strikes, the delay of transportation and prevention of timely arrival of food supplies. Then comes this revolutionary order:

"The unity of the working-class must be achieved at once, even if it means the elimination of overall power."

So goes this blue-print for strong-arm tactics against the Marshall plan. The Bolshevists are concentrating on the great Ruhr, with its coal mines and manufactories. That is the key to Germany's economy and Germany is essential to the economy of western Europe.

On the whole the protocol looks like shrewd generalship—of the Bolshevist type. It displays the same meticulous care that is being demonstrated in every country where a Communist party is trying to secure a foothold. It is an excellent lesson in organization, and not to be overlooked by those who are trying to combat the growth of the Red ism.

WASHINGTON

WHAT good is a house with no back porch?

Well, in good times a lot of people throughout the country would sniff at a home without one.

President Harry S. Truman doesn't have an unbreakable lease, but like a lot of tenants he sees no reason why the landlord shouldn't keep his living place abreast of the times.

So he is going ahead with plans for building a $15,000 balcony on the south side of the White House. And he has indicated the objections of opponents, whether inspired by political or architectural considerations, won't stop him.

Hal Boyle

Disregarding the political side of the question—and it is an election year—there is no doubt that Truman has raised in symbolical fashion the question of who rules the roost, the landlord or the tenant?

Rents have always been frozen in the White House—just as they are for most other tenants throughout the country at the moment—and the occupants have usually had their say about the changes.

THE MATTER of changing and repairing the executive mansion has never come down to a direct vote of the multi-million landlord owners. The attitude of most presidents seems to have been that:

"The American people own it, all right, but they don't have to live in it. My wife does—and if she says we're going to fix up the place we're going to."

So there has probably never been a year since it was built that the White House hasn't been modified in some way.

In defending his balcony program the other day, Truman cited Mrs. Millard Fillmore. Fillmore, like Truman, became chief executive after the death of the elected president — "Old Rough and Ready" Taylor who in 1850 washed down some wild berries with ice water against the advice of his physician and died of typhoid fever.

THE EXECUTIVE mansion was a mess. A contemporary described it at the time that Mrs. Fillmore, a stern-faced lady with lace cap and ringlets, took over:

"The Fillmores found the White House in a miserable condition, dirty and bare, with no corner that seemed like a home. The great room over the Blue Room was covered with a straw carpet made filthy by tobacco chewers."

Determined Mrs. Fillmore—just like President Truman said—cleaned up the house, put in its first bathtub (scandalously exciting then and regarded by some as immoral) and installed a cookstove to supplement the fireplace, where state dinners for 36 people hitherto had been cooked.

THE CHANGES have gone on steadily ever since, moulding the showplace home of democracy to fit the advancing times and the needs of its tenants for more space. It has spread with the expanding republic and widening government functions. If it came to sprawl—well, so does America.

In 1870-71 one of the arguments used by those seeking to move the national capital was that the White House had cost $1,515,078 from the time of Washington to 1858.

The proposal to hang on a balcony at the south and has stirred the same furore as many earlier changes.

SOME FRIENDS of the President feel, however, he would have saved considerable controversy if he had called it a "back porch" instead of a "balcony." Where Truman springs from—the farming midwest—nobody would quarrel with a man who wanted to build a back porch.

It was in early morning,
God swung His portals wide,
An angel came down to guide him
Across the great divide
When I gaze into the Heavens
It does not seem so far,
When I hear his voice and see his smile,
I am sure the gates were left ajar
Since he went away to Heaven,
And nothing can be the same,
When everything is so very still
I hear him call my name
He must be oh, so happy,
While I am so sad and alone,
I only have God's promise to see him,
In that eternal home.

Ohio Holds Over
"Captain from Castile"

The filmization of the spectacular drama of early-day America when Cortez and his army fought their way across Mexico to steal the treasures of Montezuma, "Captain from Castile," is the current attraction at the Ohio theater now playing through Monday. It was held over four days because of its wide popularity.

Starring Tyrone Power in the role of the hero, Pedro de Vargas, the Darryl F. Zanuck technicolor presentation of Samuel Shellabarger's novel features Jean Peters as Catana, a peasant maid.

Jean Peters of Canton, who a year ago was studying for her teaching degree at Ohio State university, Columbus, has made one of the most spectacular leaps to stardom in motion picture history, according to reports from Hollywood. Miss Peters won her chance through a popularity contest at the university.

The story tells of how Pedro de Vargas, the son of an aristocratic Spanish family, is forced to flee his native Spain by the Inquisition, and of his joining Cortez' army, the daring adventurers who braved the hardships and dangers of the New World. When Pedro leaves Spain, he is accompanied by Lee J. Cobb, his close friend, and Catana, the peasant maid who made his escape possible. Catana becomes his wife and the story tells of their life together as a part of the followers of Cortez.

Included in the supporting cast are Cesar Romero, who is superbly cast in the role of Hernan Cortez, and John Sutton as Diego de Silva, because of whom Pedro was forced to leave Spain.

Starting Tuesday for seven days will be "Always Together" co-starring Joyce Reynolds and Robert Hutton.

A lively romantic comedy, the film tells of a miserly millionaire, who, thinking he is about to die, orders his attorney to locate a Jane Barker and give her a million dollars without her knowing where it came from. Miss Barker, played by Joyce Reynolds, is in love with a struggling writer, played by Robert Hutton. She decides not to tell him of the money gift. The millionaire, after giving the money, surprises everyone by not dying and then decides he wants the money back. So when the young couple get married, he moves in next door to them, still bent on getting his money.

Adventure Picture
At Marion Theater

"Texas," an epic of heroic adventure, and "Arizona," a drama of outdoor life, romance and adventure, will be shown Sunday through Tuesday at the Marion theater.

The former is a romantic drama of two adventurers and the woman they both loved, set against the background of the post-Civil War West. Friends at the beginning, William Holden and Glenn Ford who are starred with Claire Trevor, find themselves on opposing sides when Ford joins a rustling gang. The latter picture tells of the birth of the state of Arizona and of the era in American history when fearless settlers pushed back the lawless frontiers. It stars Jean Arthur and William Holden.

Wednesday and Thursday, two horror films, "The Man with Nine Lives" and "The Man They Could Not Hang," both starring Boris Karloff will be shown.

Featured with Karloff in the former are Roger Pryor, Jo Ann Sayers and Stanley Brown. The weird drama tells of a scientist who is restored to life after having been in a state of suspended animation for ten years, and then embarks on a series of experiments with disregard for human life. In the latter, which features Roger Pryor, Robert Wilcox and Lorna Gray, Karloff again plays a scientist who is tried, convicted and hanged for a murder he did not commit, and then is restored to life after his execution.

"The Chinese Ring" starring Roland Winters as Charlie Chan with Warren Douglas, Mantan Moreland and Victor Sen Young, and "Wild Horse Mesa" will be shown Friday and Saturday.

Sydney Greenstreet
At State Theater

"That Way with Women" starring Dane Clark, Martha Vickers and Sydney Greenstreet will be the main attraction of a double feature Sunday and Monday at the State theater.

The picture tells the story of a jovial millionaire who leads a double life in order to escape the boredom of his retirement. He does into business with Greg Wilson, a young engineer who can not get a start in his profession. However, the millionaire doesn't reveal his true identity to Greg.

Completing the double billing will be "Texas Kid" with Johnny Mack Brown.

Tuesday and Wednesday, the pictures will be "The Man I Love" starring Ida Lupino and Robert Alda, and "The Secret of the Whistler" with Richard Dix and Leslie Brooks.

"The Macomber Affair" with "Cassidy of Bar 20" will be shown Thursday through Saturday. The former stars Gregory Peck and Joan Bennett, and heading the cast in the latter is William Boyd.

ROBERT HUTTON AND JOYCE REYNOLDS are the co-stars of the lively romantic comedy, "Always Together," which will be shown for seven days starting Tuesday at the Ohio theater.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE is nothing quite so heady as the sincere approval of one's friends, and, as I looked around the Veritzen living room, and saw Olga Veritzen, her husband, Philip, and Mr. "K.," the F.B.I. agent, smiling at me, I banished the last vestige of my exhaustion following the strain of my memory experiment with the code just used by telephone between my father and Mr. "K."

"You are sure you are all right again, dear Madge?" Olga asked, and the affectionate solicitude in her voice was as warming as a hearth fire.

"Perfectly sure," I told her, smiling. "Ask Dicky, if you don't believe me."

"She's right as rain," my husband said. "You can get on with your program, 'K.' I know you must have one after that confab with 'the Chief.'"

"Yes, I have," the F. B. I. man said. "He wants us to be ready to leave her in half an hour. He is sending adequate conveyances."

My nerve ends begin to tingle. I knew that that phrase meant the armored cars from the hideaway which my father uses only in the gravest emergencies. He must consider the capture and disposal of these two thugs to be most important.

Mr. "K." turned to Philip Veritzen.

"The Chief says," he began, and I guessed that he did not intend to speak my father's name before the bound men on the floor, "that it is possible to get out of this hotel without being seen by anyone, if you choose so to arrange it."

"It is," the owner of the Lansfield said. "He and I explored that possibility long ago."

I caught my breath in relief. He was being discreet. He can be if he wishes, but he does not always see the necessity for curbing his tongue.

"First," he said, "will the block outside the special entrance be clear?"

"Yes," Mr. "K." answered crisply. "He is attending to that now."

"Then," Philip Veritzen said, "if you will excuse me, I will send for the hotel manager. If one of these men"—he nodded toward Adams and Miller—"returns here within ten minutes, can he be spared for that time?"

"Of course."

"Then, Adams," the Lansfield owner said, "will you go at once, and ask Mr. Olsen to come up here immediately. I happen to know that he is not going out this evening. You will find him in his suite."

Without a word Adams rose from the chair in which he had been seated, watching the bound men on the floor, and started toward the door.

"There's just a chance," the F. B. I. man said, "that there are more of these babies lurking around. The Chief is sending ample protection, but until it gets here, keep your eyes open."

"I never dare close them, in this game," Adams returned with a sardonic grin, and Philip Veritzen went with him to the door.

"Better let me open it first, sir," Adams said, and his employer nodded.

"Very good, Adams," he said, and his employe first opened the door the length of the night chain, peered out, listened, and then, with his hand on his revolver, swung the door wide, and took a step into the hall.

"All clear, sir," he said. "But don't open to anybody unless you hear our special knock."

"I won't," Philip Veritzen said as he closed the door and put the night chain on again. Then he came back to his seat, and I saw him looking curiously at Mr. "K.," who was staring at the bound men on the floor.

"The Chief' suggests," Mr. "K." said in a conversational tone which I knew he was adopting for some special purpose, "that I give these chaps a hypo which will put them to sleep until he wants them to wake up, but he has left it to my discretion. It's always risky business—a hypo—you never know just what shape a man's heart may be in. But these are tough babies. They'd probably give us some trouble if we tried blindfolding and gagging them."

Tiffin Drops Harding, 38-28; St. Mary Takes Holy Family, 59-51

Prexies Go Down Fifth Time As Offense Fails; Riddle Leads Harding with Nine

By BILL MURPHY

Tiffin Columbian handed Harding High's Prexies their fifth loss in seven starts last night in a game played on the Tiffin hardwoods, 38-28.

Tom Company and Glen Bare paced the winners with 10 and 11 counters each for the Columbian combine while Dick Riddle was high for the Presidents with nine markers. Bob Short had four, Jim Coss had six, and Jim Rea and Dick Thomas had three and two each while Dick Gherman made the lone remaining tally to account for all of the Prexies' points.

Last night's fray was a slow contest and although the Prexies tried hard to get a working offensive started, they just couldn't seem to get anyone hot enough to pour in the necessary points to carry off a victory.

However, they did hold their own in the first three quarters as they trailed by only three points at the end of the first stanza 12-9 and at the half by a count of 16-13.

At the end of the third frame they had cut Tiffin's lead down to a single fielder, as they went into the fateful final frame on the short end of a 23-21 count.

Nothing seemed to work in the disastrous final period when the Prexies garnered only seven counters while the Tornadoes were getting 15.

Company Opens

Tom Company opened the scoring in the first period with a one-handed shot from out beyond the foul circle to draw first blood. Paul Harrison then dropped a free throw to increase the lead to three points. Bob Short then came to life for the Prexies while Company countered with a charity throw for Columbian and Harry Spidle quickly dropped a fielder to run the count to 6-1.

Jim Coss came back with a deuce and an ace to cut the score to 6-4. Glen Bare, Tiffin's six-foot, 18-averagin' center, then sunk a pivot shot for the Columbian combine while Bob Short sneaked in a sucker shot and Dick Riddle made two successful attempts from the foul line to make the count read eight all. Bare then got a push-up shot and Jim Rea countered on a free toss. Harrison flipped a charity throw to end the stanza 12-9.

At the start of the second period, Riddle dribbled in from outside the foul circle for a close-in shot and Coss dropped a gift shot to tie the score at 12 up. After several unsuccessful Prexy attempts, Riddle connected with a foul as the Prexies went ahead, 13-12. Bare got back on the scoring column with a pivot shot and Spidle hit on a set shot to put the Columbians ahead at the half by three points, 16-13.

Knot Up Count in 3rd

To start the third frame Clark counted on a gift shot and Riddle took one in on a lay-up to again tie the score 16-16. Harrison split the meshes for Tiffin and Clark got a sucker-shot to deadlock at 18 all. Bare capitalized on a free throw and Harrison tallied a deuce while Gherman flipped a good foul for the Presidents. Spidle and Bero were good on fouls for Columbian while Riddle and Short did the same for Harding to end the period, 23-21, Tiffin.

Four minutes elapsed in the final stanza before a score was made by either team. Company came through for the Columbian cagers and Riddle for Harding to start the point getting.

Bare pushed in one of his pivot shots for Tiffin and Coss tallied from the corner for Harding. Bare then racked a foul and Bero collected two more while Company let go a two-pointer, all for Columbian. With three minutes yet to play Jim Coss went out on fouls. Turner and Bare were successful on foul shots and Bero got two and Company added another by the same route. Rea counted on two foul shots and Thomas banged in a two-pointer for the Presidents while Company counted on a sucker-shot for Tiffin to end the tussle 38-28 for a victory for Columbian.

In the preliminary the situation was completely reversed as Dick Leffler garnered 17 counters in leading the second stringers to a 42-25 victory.

LAST UNBEATEN OHIO QUINTET GOES DOWN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—Ohio colleges couldn't offer even one unbeaten basketball record today.

The last of the spotless seasons was soiled last night when Kentucky State dumped Wilberforce State, 36-30, in a defensive contest before the Ohioans' home crowd.

The Staters had won four straight games from college competitors and three others from non-collegiate talent.

Wilberforce's defeat rated tops because of the school's seasonal record, but for sheer competition the fans pointed to that 57-56 verdict Western Reserve copped from Ohio University as part of a Cleveland arena double bill.

Sophomore Joe Lesko flipped the winning field goal from the foul circle in the final minute. Then the Ohio U. cagers missed three free throws.

Tonight's heavy, 21-game schedule is highlighted by Pittsburgh at Ohio State, Akron at Duquesne, Cincinnati at Miami, Baldwin Wallace at Toledo, Bowling Green at Marquette, Michigan State at Western Reserve and Marietta at Capital.

Western Reserve could thank amazing accuracy afield for its win. The Reserve shooters canned 23 of 55 field goal attempts for their 10th triumph in a dozen starts.

WHAT'S a coach to do with a couple of guys like Sherry Rowland and Jack Thompson, off and on centers for the Ohio Wesleyan basketball team? Last year, Coach Bob Strimer of the Battling Bishops alternated between the tall (6-4), hefty Rowland and the tall (6-3), lanky Thompson, in an effort to find a consistently good center. He'd put in Thompson in one game, and Jack might go hot, only to cool the next time he started. Or he'd try the 210-pound Sherry and get the same result .. This year, Coach Strimer made up his mind and settled on the heavier pivotman from Delaware, sent stringy Jack to forward

AND THE BISHOPS- With virtually the same team that last year won 18 while losing but nine, they were expected to set the sparks flying in their initial gallop down the cobblestones of the Ohio conference circuit, but they got off to a slow start in the race, dropping games to Baldwin Wallace, Xavier and Miami, while defeating Wooster and Evansville (Ind.). . Wednesday night, Coach Bob took his crew to Baldwin Wallace for a return engagement with the Yellow Jackets and made another switch in the lineup. He put Thompson back in at center, and placed Rowland at forward and the strategy worked. Thompson connected for 16 points and Rowland counted 14 as the Bishops scored a 75-58 revenge win over the Jackets ...Coach Strimer hopes he's found the right combination at last because the Bishops meet high-riding Muskingum (won seven—lost one) tonight in Delaware. The Muskies are running near the front of the Ohio Conference race with four league wins against one defeat.

NOT ALL of Ohio Wesleyan's center trouble is confined to finding the right Bishop pivotman. They've run into some very tough opponent centers, the best of which is probably Bob Brown, lynx-like leader of Miami university's Redskins, who counted 10 points in two minutes against the Bishop five. Brown has carry them to a 63-52 win over the Bishop five Brown has height, poise, a deadly eye, and an uncanny skill in controlling rebounds. The only time he has ever been stopped was Wednesday night when he went out of a game with Xavier with a cut under his eye requiring three stitches. The Bishops will run into another tough center tonight in Bill Ruby, six-foot-four Muskingum sophomore who has collected 117 points for an average 14.6 per game.

Richwood Goes Down To Magnetic Springs

RICHWOOD, Jan. 17—Richwood cagers suffered a loss last night at the hands of the Magnetic Springs quintet by a 37-33 count when their last period rally failed to overcome a 12 point deficit incurred earlier in the game.

Richwood's cagers threw up a balanced attack in which eight courtmen contributed at least one point while Taylor grabbed eight to set the pace.

Disbennit flipped six deuces and two charity tosses to lead Magnetic Springs with 14 of his team's 37 point total. In the preliminary between the Richwood junior courtmen and Magnetic Spring's youngsters, Richwood came out on top 24-17.

Caledonia Drops Morral To Move Into 2nd Place, 57-40

Caledonia kicked Morral out of the undefeated class and moved into second place in the county league race last night downing the Morral quintet, 57-40, on the loser's court. Pleasant retained its unsoiled record by blasting Meeker, 55-28, for its eighth straight league win.

In other games last night, Claridon took the measure of Green Camp, 47-28, LaRue flailed Martel, 64-23, and Kirkpatrick downed New Bloomington, 40-32.

Scores 25 Points

Kenneth Comstock counted 25 points to pace the Domans to their win, running his eight-game total to 161 to retain the individual scoring lead. Morral took a first quarter lead, but the Caledonia pace was too hot in subsequent periods.

LaRue put the skids to invading Martel, 64-23, to gain a 3-3 league record and move into dominance in the league after a slow early-season start. Brocklesby and Tate counted 34 points between them as LaRue maintained the lead all the way. The Martel Junior high won, 21-19.

Meeker Loses Lead

Meeker ended the first quarter on top, 9-8, but the invading Pleasant quintet found the range and took control of the game from then on, with Mayers, Gorby and Dickason collecting 46 points between them to win, 55-28 Mayers led the parade with 24 points to boost his nine-game total to 156.

Claridon spotted Green Camp a three-point lead in the first quarter and then came back to drub them, 47-28, with Irey and Chapman collecting 17 and 12 points. Weston counted 11 for the losers.

Kirkpatrick's Jones counted 29 points as his team shaded New Bloomington, 40-32. The game was knotted up at the half, but Kirk led from there out. The New Bloomington reserves won 20-14.

ROACH DECISIONS JANIRO IN GARDEN

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Lavern Roach, the "Rookie of the year" in 1941, is established today as a Madison Square Garden headliner who may draw a $100,000 gate in a proposed bout with Marcel Cerdan.

Although the 21-year-old Marine from Plainview, Texas never had appeared as a pro in the big arena before last night, most of the 11,924 fans who saw him beat Tony Janiro in a good 10-rounder went away singing his praises.

"We'll take Rocky Graziano or "Tony Zale," co-manager Chris Dundee shouted in the dressing room after the fight. Acting promoter Sol Strauss of the Twentieth Century Sporting club talked more sensibly about Cerdan or Steve Belloise. It's still quite indefinite.

The fact that Janiro, the baby-faced lad from Youngstown, O., was somewhat less than sensational at 153¼ pounds, didn't appear to be taken into consideration.

Only in the third and tenth round did Janiro show any of his usual dash. Even then he failed to follow through after stinging Roach with a flurry of righthand punches.

When asked if he thought his between-fight routine had anything to do with his poor showing, the Ohio lad said, "I guess great fighters know what they're talking about. I guess . . . well. I guess from now on I'll have to take better care of myself. It was a lesson."

Who Gets Lujack— Bears or Rockets?

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—The scramble between the National Football conference for the season's college plums reached a new pitch today with this question predominent: do the Chicago Bears have Johnny Lujack, or don't they?

A report from Chicago last night—a copyrighted story by the Tribune—said the Bears' George Halas had the All-America Irish signed, sealed and ready for delivery.

But Halas, meeting with NFL directors here, only smacked anticipatory chops and remarked: "I wish it were true, but it isn't."

In South Bend, Ind., Lujack said, "I have not yet signed." He stated he had been approached by representatives of both Bears and the All-America Chicago Rockets, who plucked his name in the annual draft, and added: "I plan to sign with a team soon."

"HOWIE" ODELL LEAVES YALE FOR WASHINGTON

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Jan. 17 — Howard "Howie" Odell, fresh from Yale has signed with the University of Washington and hit the rocky road of Pacific Coast conference football, which leads the good and the lucky to the Rose Bowl.

Howie signed yesterday.

Washington has not been rough on its coaches in recent years, although its all-time record is 17 mentors in 58 seasons. Jimmy Phelan boiled in from Purdue in 1930 and lasted a dozen years. The man he brought with him as assistant, Ralph (Pest) Welch, took over and coached six Washington teams, sending his 1943 outfit to the Bowl of the Roses. One Phelan team went to the Bowl, in 1936

ROBINSON IN TOLEDO BOUT

By The Associated Press

Schuler, Baldauf Spark First Quarter Barrage That Sews Up Local's Ninth Win

By BILL DIEM

Forwards John Baldauf and Dick Schuler of St. Mary's basketball team led the Irish to their ninth win of the season last night and their second over Columbus Holy Family, counting 41 points between them as the Irish turned back the invaders, 59-51.

These two boys dropped in 17 markers in the opening quarter to gain a point advantage that saved the day for the locals as the Columbus quintet outscored them in every subsequent period.

Johnny Baldauf dropped in four fielders in a row in the first frame before any of his attempts missed their mark, and Schuler only stumbled twice from the field and once from the foul line as he dropped in nine points in that period.

Dick Drake dropped in a set shot almost as the game began and after Dick Grimes of Holy Family matched his basket, the Irish took over completely, with two out of every three baskets made dropping through the nets without touching the rim.

Grimes made another fielder in that period, but the Irish led at the end 21-4, with Bob Stuber contributing a basket and a charity throw to the total amassed by the smoothly functioning Irish cage machine.

St. Mary cagers attempted 20 baskets in that saving first period, and made good on nine of them for a high 45 per cent of accuracy.

Invaders Edge Irish Thereafter

In following periods, the invaders edged the locals, but could never quite make up the deficit, drawing within striking distance of the Irish after an inspired third quarter 21-point barrage laid down in the main by center Dick Grimes, who counted 13 of his total 22 points then.

Going into the final period, the invaders trailed, 48-39, but by the official time out, had pulled to within five points of the Irish, but Dick Schuler scored six points and Bob Stuber one to put the game on ice

Schuler counted 25 points in all during the evening, hitting on 10 out of 23 tries from the floor for a 43.5 per cent average and making good on five out of six chances from the charity line.

Baldauf netted 16 points, all but four of them in the first half.

Holy Family's Grimes totaled 22 while forward Dale O'Rouke made 13, including seven from eight trips to the foul line

After gaining the 21 to 4 first quarter edge, the Irish were matched point for point and then some by Holy Family. O'Rouke sent in a layup shot as the half opened and Grimes pusned in a rebound from a foul shot O'Rouke missed, then added another two-pointer from out in the field before the Irish could get into the game. Dan Smith dropped in a charity toss for the locals and Grimes came back with three more points before the Irish regained control. Grimes counted three more in a row later in the period to push the invaders to the short-side of a 48-39 count as the period ended.

After getting to within five points of the Irish with three minutes to go, Dorian went out on fouls for Holy Family, and their attacak stalled until substitute forward Bill Clark found the range and swished two fielders as the game ended. The locals closed out the game with some wild shooting in an effort to hit 60 points, but failed.

The St. Mary reserves made it 11 wins in 12 starts by thumping the Holy Family youngsters, 35-8, in a 20-minute game. Irish forward Bill Merchant tallied his usual 16 points to pace the Irish youngsters while Jim Cusick and Ed Moloney helped out with eight and seven points, respectively The reserve game was shortened because of an hour delay in the arrival of the Holy Family aggregation and followed an impromptu scrimmage between the second
